

Reflection Point 2: Brook Hill Roundabout - University

Commentary by Jai Adam Schrem

While the majority of students have returned to their family homes, some are still living in their accommodation in Sheffield, whether by choice or because of their current circumstances. I chose to stay in my accommodation in the Endcliffe student village to make best use of my large desk and fast internet as I complete my mathematical studies. I am also very grateful for the extensive green space around where I live – it has been lovely to watch the seasons bloom into springtime. Although university work is less structured than usual with a lack of fixed timetabling, I have found that the regular rhythm of church services, prayers and other activities has grounded and comforted me. My faith has helped me to gain perspective on how my own circumstances as a student fit into the bigger picture, both in our local community and around the world, even while we are unable to meet one another in person.
